Welcome back to school!

This is an exciting time of year for teachers, parents, and especially students! The start of a new school year brings the energy, focus, and effort needed our students to be successful.

At John B. Wright, our teachers and staff are dedicated to our mission: Training future Arizona Scientists, Technologists, Engineers, Artists, and Mathematicians. We believe that this work is important, that our students can do it, and we will never give up.

S.T.E.M. education is wonderful because it gives real-world context to the learning students are doing in the classroom. Through our partnerships with the University of Arizona, John B. Wright is giving students the tools they will need to be successful in our community for years to come.

AVID will help to prepare your student for their future in college and advanced learning.

It is important to remember that the successful students have the following habits:

1. ON TIME, no matter what
2. Give good EFFORT, every day
3. READ, as often as possible

PARENTS: Education is a commitment between the school and families to create the conditions for success. Any problem can be solved together. High-quality education requires a commitment to bring your student every day, on time, ready to learn. When the conditions for learning are set, your children will achieve amazing things!

I am inviting all parents and guardians to come volunteer at our school so that we can form a partnership where our students see us working together for a common goal – this goal is a high quality education. We are all here to serve you and your children. Please give us feedback and information of what your needs are so that we can support you and your child’s learning.

May you and your children find peace, a joy of learning and a passion for discovery at John B. Wright this year!

Yours In Service,
